

A conference for educators in their early years of practice and for prospective teachers enrolled in an educator preparation program

MTA's Early Career Educators Conference, designed for PreK-12 teachers, paraprofessionals, and higher education members in their first five years of practice, presents early career educators with the perfect opportunity to reflect on “the year that never ends” and get tips on time-critical topics that are relevant to new educators.

This one-day conference, brought to you by MTA's New Member Committee, offers seven 75-minute programs, including workshops on mindfulness, climate change and culturally responsive practices.

To register and see the full program, go to

The conference is offered at no charge for MTA or SEAM members.

Please note: This conference is appropriate for school district and teachers' use as part of induction programs for all new teachers (603 CMR 7.00). The MTA will provide all conference participants with a record of attendance.

We welcome you to the education profession and the Massachusetts Teachers Association!
